Passage 2

1. As Faisal liked to live light, he always liked to travel light. So he had only few things which helped him live anywhere. These things were just few clothes, a book, or two, and some personal things. Also, he had a bank account and these were all his possessions. It is worth mentioning that he didn't care if he spent a single night or a month or even a year in any place he decided to stay. In that place, he might stay in a hotel, a furnished flat, or a nice house according to the money he had and the period he stayed. But the best thing was that whatever the length, he rarely needed anything he didn't have with him. He was, he liked to think, a self-contained person.
2. Faisal always felt worried as he had a sense of owning more than would fit comfortably into his suitcase which he carried everywhere. Consequently, when this feeling came to him, he immediately began to throw the less important things he thought he wouldn't need them anymore. Sometimes he gave his things to people he met in his journeys and didn't know them; let them in any place he stayed, or even threw them in baskets in streets.
3. Faisal was a professional traveler, interested and interesting. He didn't like to stay in a country or a city for a short time as he preferred to know everything about their culture, civilization, customs, and traditions. Also, he liked to learn about their language to enlarge his knowledge.
4. When Faisal was asked about the advantages and disadvantages of his life which gained from traveling, he said " I got much more knowledge, learned various languages, had a lot of friendships, and I also earned a little money. And I appreciated that for travelling.
